When Nature Howls

This has been an emotional week for many. Some rode out the storm and were just worried. Some had loved ones in the path of the storm. Some lost loved ones in the storm. Some lost property. Some evacuated and were driving long distances at very slow speeds.

The names of Hurricanes Harvey and Irma will be retired. Their intensity and the damage they caused were so great as to put them in a class all their own. Our lives have been impacted by them even if we did not experience them personally. They took an emotional toll on many. If you feel exhausted and you have done nothing, you are experiencing the toll of that which you witnessed vicariously.

The time to help is upon us. Many will only recover with our help. The kingdom of God will become a reality as we give of our time, treasure and heart to those whose lives have been turned upside down. Be in prayer. Think of your own blessings. Think of your ways of helping. Be generous.

God has blessed us with many gifts. We can afford to help others.

He lives within my heart.
